課程描述 Course Description
The course provides an introduction to the concepts, scope, strategy, design and operations of manufacturing firms and service organizations. The course integrates various areas in quality assurance, product/service design, facility layout, operations processes, material and time allocation, and considers the strategic, tactic, and operations activities of transforming resources into value-added outputs. The issue of competitiveness is addressed with a global perspective. The course also covers analytical methods that are useful in enhancing the management of a firm's operations.
課程目標 Course Objectives
Any firm, no matter in the manufacturing or service sector, transforms resources to outputs by carrying out various operations. While the detailed operations are sector and even firm dependent, there are general principles depending neither on sector nor firm that lead to quality, timely, and value-added outputs. Production and operations management is the study of such general principles. To do so, the course introduces the concepts, scope, strategy, design and operations of manufacturing firms and service organizations. Essential operations decisions in forecasting, product design, process design and control, quality assurance, location analysis, project management, and supply chain management are discussed topic by topic.

Grading & Assessments Supplemental instructions

The course will be in a mixed lecture-discussion orientation led by the instructor. All the course materials including homework assignments, case arrangements and announcements will be released through NDHU students' email accounts.

Exams: Midterm and Final

Homework Assignments: Students should submit individual work (hard copy) toward the assignments unless otherwise specified. Assignment will be announced one week before the due date or earlier.

Cases: The material of the cases will be based on, but not limited to, the text book. A group of 2 students (depending on class size) will be randomly designated as the presenters of an assigned case. Each assigned case is required to have a 10-15 minute in-class presentation by ALL the designated student(s); other students will be the discussants. As a discussant, each student should prepare your individual report within 2 pages. Students need to email your case/discussant' s report to the instructor one day before the case is going to discuss in the class. Take Case 4 as an example: The due date for the case/discussants' report of Case#4 is 2022/10/23 (before 11pm). The file name of your discussant' s report has to save as

Case preparation: Students are to extend the case to include relevant industry/company information for updated discussion. Quality of case report is assessed based on the analysis of the case itself (1/2) and the extended material (1/2).
