課程描述 Course Description
The purpose of this course is to study the field of investments and Behavior Finance. This class will combine lectures with detailed paper discussions and presentation. In some session, we will assign student to deliver a presentation and lead the discussion. A power point presentation is required. After presentation, the power point presentation file needs to be handed in. An important part of the class, however, is the research discussion. All students are expected to carefully read the main papers and actively participate in the discussion. The discussion will assume that everybody has read the papers. A presentation of an empirical paper should include (i) motivation, (ii) the main hypotheses and their theoretical foundations, (iii) the methods for testing the hypotheses and their appropriateness, (iv) the main findings, (v) the implications and contributions, and (vi) possible steps for the future research. Your grade for this class will be determined by class participation and discussion (20%) and presentation (80%).
