課程描述 Course Description
This course examines corporate financial decision-making in an international environment. It begins with an introduction to the fundamental concepts of international financial markets, including the global foreign exchange market and its operations, international capital markets, global bond markets, international equity markets, and cross-border portfolio investment. Building on these foundations, the course explores key corporate finance decisions in a global context, including foreign exchange risk management, international investment decisions, capital structure, multinational capital budgeting, and global cash management. Emphasis is placed on both theoretical frameworks and practical applications in international financial management.
課程目標 Course Objectives
The course studies corporate financial decisions in an international setting. We start with basic concepts of international financial markets, such as the global foreign exchange market and its operations, the international capital market, the global bond market, the international equity markets, and cross-border portfolio investment.
